The Historic Shipyards of Mattapoissett

By Deb Burdock

Seth Mendell, President of the Mattapoissett Historical Society, hosted the tour Shipyards of Mattapoissett on Sunday, September 2 at the Gazebo in Shipyard Park overlooking the harbor. Mattapoissett's world-famous ship building industry hallmarked this special event. The audience was held captive as history dating back from the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries unfolded.

Mendell detailed the multifaceted job of building ships with wood, pitch, tar, iron, copper and caulking, which prevents leaks. He explained that passing boats "knew when they were coming near Mattapoissett by the ringing sound of caulking hammers in the distance."

"Three generations of the Barstow family owned the oldest shipyard on the waterfront dating back to the 1750s," Mendell explained. "The Acushnet, one of the finest ships ever launched anywhere, was built by Gideon Barstow."

In the 1840s, Herman Melville went aboard this whaling ship prior to writing Moby Dick.

300 vessels were built for the worldwide whaling industry in Mattapoissett. Numerous merchant ships were built for the transportation of goods, which expanded business. The Wanderer was the last whaling ship to be built and launched in Mattapoissett. Historical backgrounds and lineage of famous shipyard owners including Cannon, Holmes, Hammond and Meigs were featured dating back from the early seventeenth century.

"Through a government contract to build lighthouses, Leonard Holmes built Lighthouse Ned. Gayhead and Louisiana are among other lighthouses built by him," added Mendell.

Seth Mendell is a retired history teacher who lives in Mattapoissett with his wife.

"I am a sixth generation descendant of Seth Mendell, Captain of the Mattapoissett Militia at a time of war in 1812. They fought off the British when they attempted to land to burn ships," he said with a smile.

On the Cover: Mattapoissett native Shane Wilhelmsen completed the Ironman competition in Mont Tremblant, Canada on Sunday, August 19. Wilhelmsen conquered a 2.4 mile swim, 112 mile bike ride and 26.2 mile run in just under 13 hours with a time of 12:52:49. Wilhelmsen began running in 2009. Photos courtesy of Rick Wilhelmsen. Local Foster Family Offers Hope

By Eric Tripoli

Imagine what it must be like to raise six children. Now imagine raising six biological children and adding 20 foster kids into the mix.

For the last decade, Amy and Mark Shaw of Rochester have been doing just that.

"We got into foster care because we wanted to give kids the opportunity to have an environment where they can grow," Amy said.

"When you take someone into your home, they are a part of your family. It's just one of those things that we're about," said Mark.

Most of the children the Shaws have cared for have been teenagers, which is a demographic that many foster families shy away from. Some kids have stayed with them for only a few months and some for years. The situation for each child is unique and the Shaws understand that it may not always work out.

"Sometimes kids come into the home and it's not a good fit. Sometimes there's personality conflicts," Mark said.

"It's been good and bad. I've been close to a lot of them and I've been distant from some of them," said Megan Shaw, one of the younger members of the biological children in the house.

"It's hard when you get used to them when they have to leave," she said.

Personality conflicts are but a small part of the foster family experience. As much as foster parents do their best to help the children for whom they are charged to care, often times there are internal wounds that love and encouragement cannot easily heal.

A few years ago, the Shaws were the foster parents of a teenage boy from Fall River. He lived with the Shaws during the week, but returned home on weekends. One day, it was discovered that he had brought a weapon to school. He was expelled and then removed from the house.

At another time, they were caring for a five-year-old girl with serious behavioral and emotional issues who proved to be too much to handle.

"She was being traumatized from the age of two," Mark said.

The young child was also on medication and was the victim of hallucinations. She was sent to a respite home during weekday afternoons because she would try to stab her foster siblings with pencils as they did homework. In the end, she was not a good fit for the Shaw household.

A teenage boy named Chris called their house on Hiller Street home for over five years. He was in high school when he met the Shaw family but suffered the burdens of addiction and an alcoholic father. But they took him in as they had all the other kids. The Shaws even saw that he got into college.

"We encouraged him to live at our house for a bit more structure," she said.

Chris decided to live at school but he soon began to act out. One night only six weeks into the semester, Chris and his friends were drinking heavily and huffing chemical fumes. They piled into a car and eventually hit a tree at over 100 miles per hour. Chris died that night from his injuries.

"We had him for five years. He was a member of our family," Mark said.

Being a foster parent doesn't always end in tragedy or the removal of a child from a home. The Shaws are foster parents because they love kids, no matter where they come from or what they've been through.

"Part of what foster care is about is that you hear about all these kids who get pushed through the system and go from house to house. We wanted to help give them a better opportunity and more stability," he said.

The Shaw family is registered with Dare Family Services, a group that serves much of southern New England. As part of the process, all families are required to go through intensive training to prepare them for the experience.

"Fostering isn't about providing a bed or a home for a child. It's about creating life-long connections," said Pamela Camara, executive director of the East Taunton Dare office.

"There's always a need. Nobody in our field would ever say there's not. The need is in finding people who can truly rise to the occasion in helping these kids. They're presented with more significant challenges as the years pass," she said.

In addition, Dare provides weekly visits to check in on their families and to keep tabs on problematic behavior and positive progress of the foster children.

Today, Amy and Mark Shaw are foster parents to two teenagers, Patty and Isaac. Patty, who has been to previous foster homes, is 16, and has been living with them for two years. At a young age, Patty was known for acting out and disappearing.

"As an 11-year-old, she felt she had the privileges of an 18-year-old," Mark said.

"When I was younger I didn't really like following the rules," Patty said. According to Mark, she has a good relationship with her biological mother and her ties to her father are improving.

"I've gotten better, but I'm still working on it," she said.

Now, Patty has goals of going to college to study child development. This summer, Megan helped get Patty a job at a local country club.

"The prospects for Patty today are looking a lot better than they were two years ago," said Mark.

The newest addition to the household is Isaac, a 15-year-old boy from Fall River. The Shaws are his first foster family and he has only been living there for about two weeks. Before arriving in Rochester, Isaac had served a month in the Department of Youth Services lock-up. He had a penchant to skip school and do drugs.

"I had to go to detox. I was smoking weed, doing 'shrooms, coke and dope," he said. "I've been sober now three months. My head feels a lot clearer."

After Isaac found out that the state was looking for him, he decided to run, and along the way picked up his heroin habit.

"I started doing heroin when I was on the run. But when I think about it now, I think it's disgusting that I would ever do that."

He was eventually turned in after a friend informed on him to authorities.

"I came to find that they were going to put me in a foster home anyway, so I made it worse for myself," he said. "This was the first summer I ever missed out on. I'll never make that mistake again."

Right now, Isaac is not enrolled in school because he hasn't had a physical exam in years; he has a doctor's appointment scheduled for early this month. In the meantime, he is already formulating plans for his future.

"I want to open up a salon with my sister. I want to be a barber," he said. "If you had asked me three months ago, I wouldn't have wanted to go to college. But it's better to have a future."

That future may not have been possible without the aid of people like the Shaw family.

"I've known a lot of them and I share the stories with other foster kids," said Megan. "'You can go this way or that.' They can get free college from the state. They have choices."

A dead seal washed up on the Mattapoisett Public Beach Tuesday morning, causing the town to close the beach until Wednesday.

the morning."

According to Mattapoisett Natural Resources officer, Kathleen Massey, a neighbor living near the beach spotted the carcass around 10:00 am Tuesday morning and called the police.

The animal had been dead for a long time, but there was no clear indication as to the cause of death, whether from a boat or natural predator. The seal was missing its head, parts of its flippers and several pieces from its torso. Massey estimated its weight at about 200 pounds.

"I can't guess what happened. I've seen seals with big chunks taken out of them before. I even saw one with a spear sticking out of its side," she said.

While it's not atypical of a dead seal to wash up on a local beach, it isn't a regular occurrence. Colonies of harp and harbor seals beach themselves in several locations around the South Coast, but Massey wasn't sure which specific species washed up on shore Tuesday.

"I've never seen one that looks like a leopard with spots all over it," Massey said. She also said that she was unable to determine where the seal came from.

The Mattapoisett Public Beach was scheduled to be reopened on Wednesday, September 5.

serving as the physical education teacher as well as a field hockey, tennis and basketball coach at Old Rochester Regional High School. Now, several years after her retirement, the community is giving back to her.

"She's done so much for the community," said Andrea DiFillippo, a member of Team Friends of Faye. "She's so loving, caring, generous, thoughtful and kind."

Four years ago at the age of 68, Miles was diagnosed with Alzheimer's Disease. In January, she was placed in long-term care, so she can no longer play golf, read, garden or walk.

Last year, members of the Old Rochester community teamed up to form Team Friends of Faye to participate in the Annual Walk to End Alzheimer's in Fall River. The team, which is comprised of 10 walkers, raised $5,000 in their first year and is hoping to raise just as much this year.

"It was awesome, we had a great time," said DiFillippo. "We couldn't believe we raised that much money."

This year's walk will be held on Sunday, September 30 at Bristol Community College in Fall River. Hundreds will gather to raise money for the 5.4 million Americans who are battling the terminal illness. It is the sixth leading cause of death in the United States and every 68 seconds, a new case is diagnosed.

Still, despite the high numbers, DiFillippo feels there needs to be more awareness.

"We need to do more," she said. "There isn't a huge face to get a lot of attention. It's becoming a huge epidemic and it doesn't get the attention it deserves. It's sort of the forgotten population. Younger diagnoses are happening more frequently, it's scary."

Friends of Faye has been emailing and utilizing social media as well as selling cupcakes to raise money for their group. To make a donation, visit act.alz.org/goto/FriendsofFaye.

"She's just really special and it's really devastating," said DiFillippo.

Police Department, DPW, Waste Water Treatment Plant, Music Hall, Taber Library, Harbormaster's building and Sippican School. The Police Department was excluded from any of the upgrades since it is a new facility.

Based on the assessment, the Energy Management Committee made three recommendations for upgrades to the facilities. The first would replace all lights and sensors in all of the facilities with the exception of the Town House. The new lights would cost $169,000 and could save the town up to $65,000 annually.

The second recommendation is to replace the insulation and boiler controls in the Fire Department. The cost of the project is $7,000 with a payback period of seven years. Making the change could save the town $1,000 annually.

The final recommendation is to replace the boilers in the Music Hall and Library. With a payback period of ten years and a project cost of $44,000, the improvement could yield up to $3,000 per year in savings.

No decisions were made with the three proposed recommendations. The Energy Management Committee will be providing more specific details as they become available from NSTAR.

The Board approved a Pavement Management Program that would examine every road in the town. CDM Smith, an engineering firm, will look at the roads and make recommendations for improvements. The project has been approved as a Chapter 90 project by

"We need to wrap our arms around the roads in this town because clearly they are not self-healing," said Selectman John Henry.

Town Administrator Paul Dawson updated the Board of Selectmen on the status of the Sprague Cove situation. Dawson said they obtained all of the necessary documents from the company who performed the maintenance on Sprague Cove to rid it of invasive plant species. By securing the documents, the town was able to put plans in motion to pay for the project.

Friends of Silvershell Beach offered to donate $12,000 to the town to pay for the maintenance work

CAT IN THE CRATE

Getting my cat in the crate to take him to the vet is a traumatic event for both of us. Any suggestions?

There isn't any way to reliably win this contest. A few hints:

Use an airline kennel from a pet shop. A cardboard box just won't work. Bring the kennel out from it's storage spot days before your vet visit so the cat gets used to it and isn't immediately sensing that a trip to the vet is upcoming. Put the cat in a bathroom or other small room without beds to hide under. If your first attempt at placing the cat in the crate either head first or hind feet first is unsuccessful, wrap the cat in a towel and then put the towel and the cat in the crate.

that was completed. Additionally, they will pay for the herbicides for the first year of a three-year maintenance plan while a more permanent solution is drafted.

"Things are on the straight and narrow," said Dawson about the status of the situation.

Dawson also updated the Board on the status of the Marion General Store parking lot by saying he went and visited the lot to check out the lines. He said the lines were not visible and it was definitely time to repaint them. He is currently in the process of pricing out the project with a contractor and should have a price by the next meeting.

The Board of Selectmen will meet again on Tuesday, September 18 at 7:00 pm in the Marion Town House.

Rochester Conservation Commission

By Eric Tripoli

The Rochester Conservation Commission met for their first September meeting on Tuesday, September 4. The first hearing, which was continued from August, was in regards to a Notice of Intent filed by Robert Ferreira of Infinity Landscape Construction Company on behalf of Kurt Noyce. Ferreira is seeking approval for regrading and excavation associated to the construction of an in-ground pool and cabana for property at 38 Gerrish Road. The project would take place within a 100-foot wetland buffer zone.

"We're proposing a buffer zone project that involves the construction of a pool, a concrete apron around the pool and a cabana [to be used as storage]," said Kevin Forgue of G.A.F. Engineering.

In addition, a chain-link fence is proposed that would run parallel to a nearby wetland area. The project would also require a staging area for building materials.

"There is an existing gravel driveway that goes down to the site where the pool is proposed. If there is any stockpiling of materials, that's where it would be," he said.

Forgue said that the location of the cabana has been moved further away from the wetland border, per the request of Rochester conservation agent Laurell Farinon.

The Commission voted in favor of the project, pending a standard order of conditions.

The Commission then heard from engineer Rick Charon on behalf of James Welch and Marguerite Zandrowicz regarding an amended order of conditions for property at 357 Neck Road. The amended order would include the replacement of an existing porch with a new deck, as well as renovations to the cottage on the property.

While the Commission was largely in favor of the project, Farinon requested that erosion control measures be added to the project.

The Commission then voted in favor of the plan.

The Conservation Commission then held a public meeting, continued from August 21, regarding a Request for Determination of Applicability filed by the City of New Bedford for property on North Avenue. The City would like to install a 15,000-panel solar array on 28.5 acres near Little Quittacas Pond. The project would be completed in conjunction with Con Ed Solutions and the Real Goods Solar Company.

The project, which would be built on land owned by the City of New Bedford, would generate electricity to be used by the New Bedford municipal water department. No electricity would be sold by the city.

The project has been met with a lot of questions and concerns from the community, though there were few residents present for this meeting. The current proposal reflects a reduction in the size of the project and includes a redesigned drainage plan that would relegate all precipitation on the site.

Sam Moffett of TRC Environmental was back before the Commission to answer more questions. Moffett had spoken to the Commission two weeks ago and has met with the Planning Board.

"I have little to add to my presentation from our meeting two weeks ago," Moffett said.

Commission member Laurene Gerrior asked who would be in charge of maintenance of the site.

"The City of New Bedford would lease the land to Con Ed Solutions, who would maintain the array," Moffett said.

"I've been out to the site a couple times to review the wetland delineation. As you can see from the plans, the City has deliberately kept the majority of the work away from the wetlands," said Farinon.

She said that she found no significant conflict regarding encroachment of the wetlands due to the construction of the array.

The Conservation Commission voted in favor of the solar project.

The next meeting of the Rochester Conservation Commission will be on Tuesday, September 18 at 7:00 pm at the Town Hall.

Solar Task Force Coming to Fruition

Marion Planning Board

By Katy Fitzpatrick

The Marion Planning Board and Energy Management Committee voted in favor of creating a Solar Task Force that would discuss matters pertinent to the possible solar panel farms coming to Marion in the near future. The task force was recommended at the Planning Board's regular meeting on Tuesday, September 4 in the Marion Town House.

The task force will be comprised of two members from both groups. From the Planning Board, Ted North and Sherman Briggs agreed to assume the roles. The Energy Management Committee will discuss potential representatives and appoint them at a later date.

A proposed solar panel farm is in the works in Marion, and according to the Planning Board, the Marion Transfer Station is the most logical and likely place it will be constructed. The farm would be approximately 2 – 2.5 acres in size. The Planning Board worries, however, because there are no bylaws or regulations in place for solar farms.

"It would be a benefit for our town to get some design standards and put them in the bylaws," said North.

North believes that there should be rules and regulations for residences wishing to use solar panels on their homes. There are two types of installations: pole mounted and ground. Panels can also be flat or angular. Regulations would keep the town consistent with their panels.

In order for the bylaws to be established, the landfill's zoning status would have to be changed from a residential status to a light industrial status. Zoning statuses can only be changed at Town Meeting. Both committees were torn in rushing to get the proposal drafted before the Fall Town Meeting or waiting to get more information on the project and inform the public.

While the majority of both committees believe the landfill is the perfect location for the project, it is still facing opposition from a few members.

unfriendly setting to build a solar farm on?" asked North.

Both committees agreed more information was necessary before they could decide whether or not the plan would be ready to bring to Town Meeting this fall.

"None of us have enough information," said Planning Board Member Thomas Magauran. "Until we have a real project, we shouldn't make a decision."

The Marion Planning Board will meet again on Monday, September 17 at 7:00 pm in the Marion Town House.

Alterations and Audits

New Rules in the Senior High School

ORR School Report

By Jess Correia

The start of the school year always brings bustle and a subtle chaos to all involved, especially those in the junior and senior high schools. New classes, new teachers, class meetings and stacks of school paperwork often mark the first week. Teachers must learn new faces and assess their new class populations for the year. Also with the beginning of the year come scheduling problems. Directed more toward the high school, where students choose their courses, the guidance office is always a zoo.

As of March 2012, a new rule has been implemented concerning course changes. In an attempt to reduce the disarray the guidance department experiences early in the year, students are not allowed to add, drop or substitute classes. Unless is it an approved level change (dropping down from Honors-level to A-level), students are fixed in the classes and electives they chose for themselves the previous year.

For students, this means that even if you have an elective you really dislike, or a certain class you would rather take the next year, you are pretty much frozen where you are. For teachers, this means that there will be much less shifting your rosters and seating plans around. For guidance, this will mean much less volume of students flooding to their counselors, allowing them to spend more time for their other obligations.

Also concerning scheduling is the new enforcement of study halls. Unless students are taking AP courses, they are not allowed to have more than one study hall per semester, in the hope of pushing students to fill that extra block with another class to further their education.

A third amendment to the rules of scheduling classes is the induction of "auditing" courses. This will generally benefit two types of students, the first being those who want to drop a class but do not have the approval of guidance for the change. This means you can tough it out in the class or perform an "audit." In an audit, you go to the class as normal but do not receive a number or letter grade for the work you do; you will have an "audit" written on your transcript for that class. This way, should you fall behind on a certain part of the class or fail a test, it does not affect your GPA but you are still obtaining the intellectual benefits of taking the class.

The other type of students that will benefit from auditing are those who want to take a class to enrich their minds or just to learn a little on the subject without the pressure of a definitive grade at the end of the class.

These new rules will hopefully instill better planning on the part of the students and ensure a less hectic beginning of the year for the guidance department and the teachers of the high school.

Fall Sports Preview: Boys' and Girls' Soccer

ORR Sports Report

Every year, sports teams must face a familiar problem: how to replace the valuable seniors lost to graduation. For the Old Rochester Regional soccer teams, the problem is bigger than ever this season.

The girls' team, led by Coach Jeff Lombard, won the SCC championship title last year but lost nine seniors to graduation, including All-Eastern Mass players Mollie Beaulieu and Gabby Kondracki, along with Goalie Casey Magee. They boys' team, led by Coach John Sullivan, lost a whopping 13 seniors, including Midfielders Nate Houston and Matt Teefy and key defenders Marc Gammell and Noah Filloramo.

their second place finish in the SCC league from last year. Leading the efforts will be senior Forwards Teddy Costa and Max Houck. Junior Mikey Pruchnik will take over as Goalie, and juniors Robby Magee and Alden Truesdale should also help the Bulldogs to win games this fall.

The girls' team, although weakened substantially by graduation, brings back key players in senior captains Hannah Walsh, Alison Francis, Hannah Bouvette, and Katelyn Cummings. Coach Lombard states that the probable opening day lineup for the Lady Bulldogs will include 5 sophomores and 1 freshman. Lombard also says that the team has a lot of potential, skill and speed, but that with a tough opening schedule, early success will be a key for the remaining part of the season.

The younger players will add to the team, but Lombard says that they also contribute to the team's greatest obstacle: communication.

"So far, communication has been a challenge that has been put to the girls, and may be our biggest obstacle. With such a young group, many have been reluctant to take charge and be vocal," said Lombard.

"Both teams are excited for the season," said Athletic Director Bill Tilden. "They [the coaches] will be watching the younger players to see how they do on a varsity level."

Both the boys' and girls' teams begin their SCC seasons on Wednesday, September 5 against Apponequet. The boys are away, while the girls will play at ORR. Both

To the Editor:

The most frequently referenced story among the staff of the Old Rochester Regional District in recent times is not an episode of PBS's "John Adams" series, not the BBC's latest Shakespearean production, not "Nova's" current piece on the universe, not even the less esoteric events on "CSI," as in some previous school days; but is, in fact, "The Emperor's New Clothes." No, that is not a new HBO series; it is the old fable about the Emperor who was tricked into believing that he had a brand new beautiful set of clothes, when, in fact, he was parading before his subjects with no clothes at all. kingdom had the courage to tell him that he was naked, so he proudly marched assuming that everyone was admiring his new clothes. No one told him out of fear of retaliation, until –

A child, however, who had no important job and could only see things as his eyes showed them to him, went up to the carriage.

"The Emperor is naked," he said.

"Fool!" his father reprimanded, running after him. "Don't talk nonsense!" He grabbed his child and took him away. But the boy's remark, which had been heard by the bystanders, was repeated over and over again until everyone cried:

"The boy is right! The Emperor is naked! It's true!"

The Emperor realized that the people were right but could not admit to that. He thought it better to continue the procession under the illusion that anyone who couldn't see his clothes was either stupid or incompetent. And he stood stiffly on his carriage, while behind him a page held his imaginary mantle. (Hans Christian Anderson, available at deoxy.org)

In private, many at ORR frequently say, "The emperor has no clothes," but will not say it openly, nor to those with the invisible clothes, for fear of being discredited, or worse, for fear of retaliation. So what remains are the misguided decisions, the changes in policy, the focus on teaching to the test, the placing of students where they will not best acquire their skills and the continuing concern for the school's ratings; i.e., AYP and state rankings, rather than the importance of true student learning and achievement. Administrators focus on AYP and comparisons to other districts; the School Committee defines success according to test scores and data and shows more interest in the comparisons than in the educational experience for our students.

Education is about each student's being met as an individual, and a school's mission is to help each student grow in skills, confidence and in self-esteem. Those goals are achieved through personal connections between teachers and students, through creativity in the classroom, through a commitment to high standards. We all know that anyone who speaks of a powerful and valued school experience talks about individual teachers who cared and who made learning exciting; not of standardized tests, curriculum requirements, common assessments and "Power Standards"; unfortunately, those being the aspects of education with which our administrators and School Committee are currently obsessed. The damage done by No Child Left Behind should be acknowledged, and all community members and voters should be concerned. Whoever thought that it would be a good idea for the federal government to become involved in local education? We in the communities of Mattapoisett, Marion and Rochester once had a stellar school system; we were in the forefront of all that was good in education. Not to have had the courage to move forward and continue what was true excellence – standards of excellence in teaching and learning much higher than the state's and the federal government's – and abandon those and replace them with misguided and diminished data-driven standards for students is neglect of the true mission of education. Administrators currently let AYP and NCLB dictate decisions and curriculum in order to maintain their own job security and future salary increases based on merit – but not merit measured by excellent learning experiences for children, but instead, by data.

To reference another familiar story, education in the Old Rochester Regional District has become a topsy-turvy world – like "Alice in Wonderland" down the rabbit hole, where everything is turned upside down. For what? For test scores? For a school's AYP rating? I know, of course, that standardized testing and data collection will not go away. In fact, before long, the MCAS will be replaced by a national test. What we need to understand is that good teaching, high standards for learning and behavior, and creative and engaging curriculum will lead to true learning for students. The students in the ORR district performed well years ago when MCAS testing began – way before a data-driven and teach-to-the-test mentality took over, and the MCAS tests were then more demanding. Clearly, some students need extra help in mastering the skills needed to become proficient in math and ELA, but ORR has had in place excellent MCAS review courses for students who have failed the test or are in danger of failing. Because those classes are taught by skilled English and math teachers and were created and planned and executed by teachers and not administrators or Curriculum Directors, they are not teach-to-the-test drills, limited to narrow "Power Standards," but rather true skill-building learning experiences.

Also among the concerns often voiced by teachers, among themselves, is grade inflation. Student accountability and a commitment to hard work are giving way to passing students without their having acquired the necessary skills. Too many students are receiving A's, giving them and their parents a false sense of achievement. Another practice troubling many teachers is the placing of too many students in Honors and AP classes at the high school. Students are then not in the environment where they learn best. ORR once had a commitment to recognizing a student's level of proficiency and need for challenge and moving from there. Students respond to the feeling of personal success that comes from meeting an authentic challenge. ORR once had a Tech Prep program that was phenomenally successful in raising students' skills, as well as their confidence as learners. Many of you reading this may have been my Tech Prep students, who went on to two or four-year degrees or skilled positions in the workplace and are now in successful careers and, in many cases, now serve as the backbone of our three communities. But more on levels next time.

Education is not a popularity contest. Education is a serious responsibility, perhaps the most serious, beyond the responsibility of parenting. Indifference or succumbing to fear of those in power is a shirking of that responsibility. It was once possible at ORR, in fact, appreciated and respected, to be an enthusiastic supporter and contributor and still question and disagree. Sadly, no more.

To quote again from MLK, Jr., as in my previous letter, "There comes a time when silence becomes betrayal." At staff and faculty meetings and district meetings, very seldom does anyone speak up. Discussion is not encouraged when those present feel that they do not have a voice. I speak – for the good of the students, of the families and of the taxpayers.

More to come – next time. I have shared some of the concerns; next, some of what does work in the classroom to inspire and motivate.

Rochester COA to Hold Accreditation Forum

Once again, the Rochester Council on Aging will be going through a year-long process to seek National Senior Center Accreditation, under the auspices of the National Council on the Aging and the National Institute of Senior Centers. The goal is to achieve national accreditation for the Rochester Senior Center for a second 5-year term. The first accreditation was achieved in 2007.

The first six to nine months of the process involve a comprehensive assessment of the senior center's operation, which is categorized into nine different operational standards. This assessment is ideally accomplished through the involvement of many community friends and partners who are willing to serve on one of the nine standards committees.

Individuals are invited to find out more about the project and the process by attending an informational forum on Thursday, September 13, at 2:30 pm at the senior center. To find out more about the process, its benefits, requirements, as well as how you can help, all are encouraged to attend.

If you can serve on a committee, your maximum time commitment may be as much as 20 hours in a year or

EDITOR'S PICK OF THE WEEK

Mattapoisett's Wilhelmsen Completes Daunting Ironman Competition

Running a marathon is no easy feat. Tack on a 112-mile bike ride and 2.4-mile swim and most people would call it impossible. But for the few gifted athletes who are able to complete all three, there is the Ironman competition, an event in which Mattapoisett native Shane Wilhelmsen competed on August 19 in Mont Tremblant, Canada.

"I felt very satisfied and relieved," said Wilhelmsen about completing the Ironman. "I had a very big feeling of accomplishment."

Wilhelmsen began running in 2009 when he trained for his first 5K with some co-workers. After realizing how much he loved running, he graduated to triathlons and marathons before trying his first half-Ironman competition.

"I never thought I would do anything like this," he said. "I was never big into running or anything. I biked back in middle school just to get around here and there but never competitively. I did very little running in high school."

Wilhelmsen has come a long way since his days at Old Rochester Regional High School, where

he graduated in 1997. He began preparation for the Ironman competition in February, following an intense 26-week workout regimen and dedicating 10 – 15 hours per week to his exercise. Even with all the training, there's no doubting the difficulty of the competition.

"The hardest part for me is the bike ride, but I go back and forth with that and swimming," said Wilhelmsen. "At the start, they fire off a cannon and 2,300 people run into the water at the same time. That is kind of daunting and you have to be prepared for a lot of contact swimming."

After the race, it took Wilhelmsen nearly two weeks to fully recover. He took the week following the competition off to relax and let his body mend, but he's back on the pavement running to prepare for a marathon in October. He has his sights on qualifying for the 2013 Boston Marathon in April.

Wilhelmsen is proof that you can do anything you put your mind to, even without an extensive athletic background.

He has plenty of advice for those looking to challenge themselves physically.

"Start small and see where you can go," he said. "After I did the half-Ironman a couple summers ago, I was completely wiped and I was lying down on the grass. After a few minutes I started recovering a little bit and I felt like I could do more."

MOVIE REVIEW

Mild Interest

By Rob Gonsalves
www.robsmovievault.com

The Possession.* Starring Jeffrey Dean Morgan and Kyra Sedgwick. Directed by Ole Bornedal. Running time: 91 minutes. MPAA rating: PG-13.

The Possession adds something to the long list of horror-movie rules: Never buy an old, weird-looking box at a yard sale. Said box has Hebrew carvings on the outside and no obvious way to open it — no lid, no seams. Inside the box is a dybbuk — a Jewish demon seeking an innocent as a host body. This may be an interesting take on the well-worn exorcism subgenre, but the movie doesn't have much to say about Jewish mysticism or demonology. Apparently all you have to do is go to a young, compassionate Hasidic Jew and he'll clear it up for you, reading loudly from scripture. It helps if your guy is played by the reggae/hip-hop artist Matisyahu, who at one point during the exorcism calls out "Everybodeeee put your hands on her!" and for a second it sounds like "Everybodeeee put your hands in the air and wave 'em like you don't care!"

Yet another mid-budget spook show produced by Sam Raimi's Ghost House imprint, The Possession spends a lot of time setting up the family targeted by the dybbuk. Basketball coach Clyde (Jeffrey Dean Morgan) and his wife Stephanie (Kyra Sedgwick) are getting a divorce; this is hard on their two daughters, Em (Natasha Calis) and Hannah (Madison Davenport). Stephanie is going out with a dentist who makes everyone take their shoes off in the house and wants to put braces on Hannah's teeth. It's not her teeth that anyone has to worry about, though. Em finds the dybbuk box at the aforementioned yard sale and Clyde buys it for her. Soon enough, Em is acting strangely and violently, craving the box like an addict. For too long, everyone thinks Em is just acting out; obviously all these post-Exorcist movies unfold in a universe where The Exorcist doesn't exist and people waste valuable time looking for psychological and medical explanations for the supernatural.

Eventually Clyde goes to Matisyahu, who, unlike all the other Jews Clyde begs for help, has a conscience and is willing to risk his life to save Em. I doubt this is meant to be anti-semitic; it's just a chance for Matisyahu to play heroic and rebellious. By the time Em is wolfing down raw meat from the fridge and an MRI shows the dybbuk living inside her chest, The Possession has defaulted to the generic demonic thrills its title promises. A few moments are effective, though, courtesy of the noted Danish director Ole Bornedal (Nightwatch), who holds himself to clean, classical filmmaking and prefers creepiness to shocks. The movie is well-appointed if not terribly well thought-out. If you wanted to get rid of a dybbuk box, would you put it in a yard sale? What if nobody buys it? And are we to believe that nobody in a hospital would hear loud exorcism-type goings-on in a deserted physical-therapy room? And what, if anything, do the doctors say when the dybbuk shows up on the MRI?

Like The Exorcist, The Possession seems to imply that a broken home opens the gates of hell; divorce will leave your daughter vulnerable to demons. Even as a metaphor, it rings no bells of truth: parents staying miserably together "for the sake of the kids" apparently cause no harm to the kids whatsoever. (Poltergeist was refreshing because the parents were happily married and the phantasms still came.) In any event, unlike The Exorcist, the nuclear family is restored here, with the cowardly dentist peeling off down the street, never to be seen again. Clyde will pass up his dream job in North Carolina the movie brings up several million times, and he and Stephanie, who in Clyde's words "forgot how to get along," will presumably forget how to not get along. Really, the dybbuk was the best thing that could've happened to them.

Mattapoisett Women's Club Seeking Members

The highly regarded Mattapoisett Women's Club (MWC) concluded an exceptionally successful summer of fundraising boosting our scholarship endowment. To share in our accomplishments and varied activities, the Club is actively seeking new members who wish to participate in civic, educational, philanthropic and social activities.

Becoming a member of the MWC holds numerous benefits. The most obvious of these is that it is an arena in which to make new friends in a relaxed environment along with others who are equally eager to form new acquaintances and participate in Club activities. There are several special interest groups within the Club: a fascinating garden group, a stimulating literature group, an inspirational symphony group, a thought-provoking Great Decisions group that discusses foreign policy and Bridge groups that challenge the mind.

The MWC is a great way to make new friends if you have recently relocated to this exquisite seaside community or have a general interest in Mattapoisett. So, whether you are new to Mattapoisett or have been a resident for a long time, the Mattapoisett Women's Club offers a variety of interests for everyone.

The Club meets regularly at the Mattapoisett Congregational Church, 27 Church Street on the third Thursday of each month at 12:00 pm beginning in September and ending on the third Thursday of April. For more information, please contact Barbara Ketchel at 508-758-9593 or Myra Hart at 508-758-4703.

Senior Work-Off Applications Available

Applications for the Town of Mattapoisett's senior work-off program will be available at the Town Clerk's office in Town Hall Monday through Friday from 8:00 am to 3:00 pm. They are also available at the Council on Aging at 17 Barstow Street.

SALOME'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might not like the sudden setback in your plans. But keep that headstrong Arian temperament in check and wait for explanations. Things will begin to clear up by week's end.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Enjoy the respite from your recent hectic schedule, but be ready to plunge into a new round of social activities. A new contact holds much potential for the future.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A trusted colleague has news that could change your perception of a current workplace situation. What had seemed unfair might prove to be highly favorable after all.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You still need to watch what you say and how you say it. What you assert as honesty, others might perceive as Crabbiness. Be patient. This difficult period clears up by the weekend.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your Royalness needs time away from the limelight to catch up on things, from tidying your desk to making those calls you've put off. You're back in the center of things by the weekend.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Honesty is the best policy, of course. But you'll do better at achieving your goals if you can be less aggressive and more circumspect in how you phrase your comments.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your ability to maintain your balance in confusing situations continues to work for you. Stay on the steady course, one step at a time. The weekend shows improvement.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your indecisiveness could simply be your keen Scorpion sense warning you to be wary of making a commitment. Take this time to do a more thorough investigation.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Good news: New information comes your way to help you make a more informed decision on how to deal with the opportunity that has opened up for you.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) This is a good time to reinforce your self-confidence by acknowledging your good qualities to yourself. A lull in your social life ends by the weekend. Have fun.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) It's a good time to let those recently pent-up emotions flow more freely. Why not start by letting the people you care for know how you really feel about them?

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Resist offers, no matter how well-intentioned, to help with a personal decision. Only you know what must be done, and you have the emotional strength to follow through.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a talent for getting things done. You also have a gift for bringing people together in both personal and professional relationships.

yourself and your family from the threat of EEE virus (Eastern Equine Encephalitis Virus). The best way to protect is to prevent mosquito bites.

Massachusetts Department of Public Health makes the following recommendations:

1. If you must be outdoors at dawn and dusk when mosquitoes are most active, wear long-sleeved shirts and long pants. Use mosquito repellent that contains DEET and follow the directions on the label. DEET concentrations above 1A-15Vo for children, or with DEET concentrations above 30-357o for adults.

2. Take special care to cover up the arms and legs of children playing outdoors near swampy areas. When you bring a baby outdoors, cover the baby's carriage or playpen with mosquito netting.

3. Fix any holes in your screens and make sure they are tightly attached to all your doors and windows.

4. Mosquitoes can breed in water that collects in ditches, clogged gutters, old tires, wheelbarrows and wading pools. Don't let stagnant water collect around your home. (Information taken from Public Health EEEV fact sheet). For general questions about EEE virus, visit www.mass.gov/dph/wnv/wnvl.htm.

Habitat for Humanity Seeking Land

Buzzards Bay Area Habitat for Humanity (BBAHFH) is seeking land or property to be renovated for future Habitat homes.

Buzzards Bay Area Habitat for Humanity's housing programs is supported by donations. Our financial resources to purchase land are limited, so we rely upon gifts of land to assure the affordability of the houses that we build. A special thank you to past land donors, the Byrne family and the Decas family, for supporting Habitat and its cause by donating land, enabling BBAHFH to build five affordable homes in the area!

There are many benefits of donating land to BBAHFH. Donors receive substantial tax deductions on the donation, freedom from unwanted property holdings, and long-term savings not having to pay property taxes! By donating land or property to BBAHFH, you will be providing an affordable home for a deserving family in need, joining in our efforts to meet the incredible need for safe, well-built, affordable homes in our area.

BBAHFH is looking for various types of properties, from a parcel of land that is suitable to build on, to property with a home that needs to be demolished or renovated. We are hoping to partner with private donors, local foundations, affordable housing trusts, community preservation groups, other town agencies, developers, realtors, and banks looking to meet their CRA

Be a Part of the Road to Recovery

The American Cancer Society's Road to Recovery program is in great need of volunteers to drive local cancer patients to and from their life-saving medical appointments. An integral part of treating cancer successfully is making sure cancer patients receive their treatments, but many find making transportation arrangements a challenge.

"I decided to get involved with the American Cancer Society's Road to Recovery program because it seemed like a very simple way to be able make a difference, and it was just one hour a month," said Beth Riccitelli of Somerset. "I was also newly retired and didn't mind driving, so Road to Recovery was the ideal way to meet new people. It really feels good to be able to provide transportation to a patient in need of a ride. Everyone is so thankful, and I have been able to make some wonderful friends."

You too can make a difference in the fight against cancer by becoming a driver for the American Cancer Society's Road to Recovery. Drivers use their own vehicle to drive patients to and from their treatments. The schedule for volunteers is flexible, treatment

Boys and Girls Club Car Donations

With winter now passed, the snow gone and spring in the air, it's time to get that unwanted car out of the driveway that was buried all winter. The Boys and Girls Clubs will gladly accept car donations.

The Boys and Girls Clubs are proud of the safe and enriching environment they offer to kids. The donated cars are auctioned off and the funds generated help support their many programs. Donate your car and help support your local club. To donate, or for more information, call 800-246-0493.
